

Trump's Policy on Russia and China?

By Stephen Lendman

Asia-Pacific Research, January 14, 2017

Next week he'll become America's 45th president, an awesome responsibility for anyone, especially having to deal with bipartisan neocons infesting Washington. – hell-bent for endless wars of aggression.

Whatever Trump said on the stump no longer matters. Once in office, his agenda will speak for itself.

In a Friday Wall Street Journal interview, he said he's open to lifting sanctions on Russia if we get along, but not straightaway, saying if Moscow "is really helping us, why would anybody have sanctions if somebody's doing some really great things?"

He referred to Russia's involvement in combating terrorism and cooperating with Washington on other issues without further elaboration.

He's open to meet with Putin once in office, saying it's "absolutely fine with" him. Asked about America's One-China policy, he said everything is under negotiation.

He won't commit to longstanding policy unless Beijing's trade and currency practices change, hardly likely. He irresponsibly called China a currency manipulator. He'll discuss these and other issues with President Xi Jinping before deciding what actions he'll take.

He's willing to end what Beijing calls "the cornerstone of the healthy development of (Sino/US) relations..." Its government wants no "interference or destruction of this political foundation."

China's Foreign Ministry so far hasn't commented on Trump's Journal interview. His views aren't surprising. His actions remain to be seen.

Getting along with Russia and China are crucial. Adversarial relations with either or both countries risks unthinkable confrontation, possible nuclear war, America as vulnerable to mass destruction as its adversaries.

Nuclear war is madness. Only deranged leaders would launch it. The risk was huge if Hillary emerged triumphant last November.

Trump's top priority isn't making America "great again." It's fostering world peace, stability and security. Without them, nothing else matters.

French National Assembly defense committee member Nicolas Dhuicq earlier said he believes Trump will move toward cooperation with Russia while focusing on China as a rising world power.

Trump said, if elected, he'd "instruct the US trade representative to bring trade cases against China, both in this country and at the World Trade Organization."

On Friday, Obama extended earlier imposed sanctions on Russia for another year, beginning in March.

He lied, saying Moscow "continue(s) to pose an unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security and foreign policy of the United States."

He's going all out to toughen US policy on Russia before leaving office, posing a challenge for Trump on how to undo the immense damage he's done - especially with Congress wanting adversarial relations maintained.

Most Americans have no idea about the dangers of reckless US foreign policy since Soviet Russia's dissolution.

Humanity's survival is threatened without a way found to stop this madness. Is Trump up to the challenge? Is he part of the solution or continuation of reckless policy?

Stephen Lendman lives in Chicago. He can be reached at lendmanstephen@sbcglobal.net.

His new book as editor and contributor is titled "Flashpoint in Ukraine: How the US Drive for Hegemony Risks WW III."

<http://www.claritypress.com/LendmanIII.html>

Visit his blog site at sjlendman.blogspot.com.

Listen to cutting-edge discussions with distinguished guests on the Progressive Radio News Hour on the Progressive Radio Network.

The original source of this article is Asia-Pacific Research
Copyright © Stephen Lendman, Asia-Pacific Research, 2017

Comment on Global Research Articles on our Facebook page

Become a Member of Global Research

Articles by: Stephen Lendman

About the author:

Stephen Lendman lives in Chicago. He can be reached at lendmanstephen@sbcglobal.net. His new book as editor and contributor is titled "Flashpoint in Ukraine:

US Drive for Hegemony Risks WW III."

<http://www.claritypress.com/LendmanIII.html> Visit his blog site at sjlendman.blogspot.com. Listen to cutting-edge discussions with distinguished guests on the Progressive Radio News Hour on the Progressive Radio Network. It airs three times weekly: live on Sundays at 1PM Central time plus two prerecorded archived programs.

Disclaimer: The contents of this article are of sole responsibility of the author(s). Asia-Pacific Research will not be responsible for any inaccurate or incorrect statement in this article. Asia-Pacific Research grants permission to cross-post Asia-Pacific Research articles on community internet sites as long the source and copyright are acknowledged together with a hyperlink to the original Asia-Pacific Research article. For publication of Asia-Pacific Research articles in print or other forms including commercial internet sites, contact: editors@asia-pacificresearch.com www.asia-pacificresearch.com contains copyrighted material the use of which has not always been specifically authorized by the copyright owner. We are making such material available to our readers under the provisions of "fair use" in an effort to advance a better understanding of political, economic and social issues. The material on this site is distributed without profit to those who have expressed a prior interest in receiving it for research and educational purposes. If you wish to use copyrighted material for purposes other than "fair use" you must request permission from the copyright owner.

For media inquiries: editors@asia-pacificresearch.com